

Remember Mountainside Golf Course has a natural slope that will cause your ball to move down the slope east to west throughout your round - on all shots including on the putting greens.

1. The opening tee shot rewards a ball that ends up on the right side of the fairway. Long hitters have a chance to reach the green in 2 shots, but all players should be wise with club selection to this larger two-tiered green.

2. Demanding hole requires accuracy and distance to ensure best access to the green from the right side of the fairway. The approach shot needs to avoid the large front right bunker to land on this lengthy two-tiered green.

3. Short but deceiving par 3 requires a forced carry over the pond in front. Make sure to take enough club, especially if the prevailing south wind is blowing as you do not want to come up short to this left to right sloping green.

4. The affectionately dubbed "FairMonster" is the longest and hardest hole on the course. Aim down the left side on each shot as the fairway slopes significantly from left to right. On approach be aware of the pin location on another 2-tiered green to get the best result.

5. One of the best views on the course, check out Columbia Lake to the south. Focus on the shot at hand though as it requires a tee shot aimed right of the pin to account for the severely sloped green, where the real challenge on this hole lies, putting.

6. Two accurately placed shots are important on this long par 4. Your tee shot should favor the right side as everything slopes left. On your approach, aim right as the ball often bounces up onto the green. Note the location of the group in front as you may not be able to see them on the green from the fairway.

7. The shortest par 4 on the course requires a lay-up tee shot to the centre of the fairway near the 100 yard marker. The short approach in from there is relatively easy as long as you avoid the big front right bunker.

8. Once again the sloping fairway will kick the ball from right to left on this slight dogleg right. The approach is the most challenging part as the elevated green is one of the smallest on the course and makes for difficult putting.

9. A fun tee shot that directs you back towards the clubhouse features the prevalent right to left slope. The wide green makes for a number of interesting pin placements especially with bunkers behind and on both sides.
